Give Your Guest Something to Talk About... When You Host Your Own Playing the Field Party

Los Angeles, CA– April 28, 2008 – You’re invited to host a “Playing the Field” party. Playing the Field Card Game is a delightfully poignant idea that was developed and produced by the creative genius extraordinaire, Amanda Brown, a Relationship Expert and Dating Designer, after she discovered the secret to dating.

Do guys/girls really listen? “When you ask the right questions they do,” says Amanda. So she developed a fun and unique card game that allow you to explore your potential partner in a safe and fun environment. No more nerve wrecking, tough or awkward moments, now it is easier with her new game, Playing the Field. It’s a game that sparks conversation between a couple, whether in the “first stages of dating,” or in a “more established yet needs spark to get it going again” period.

Discovered by Hollywood Executive Producer, Heather Holliday, Amanda was invited to be one of the many participants who entertain the invitees at the Mix Media GREEN Awards Suites. Amanda had the honor of showcasing her game, Playing the Field, a relationship card game with all of the celebrities and Hollywood VIPs who attended the event held on September 13-16, 2007 at the SOFITEL in Beverly Hills.

Since so many of us need help getting the conversation started Amanda gives us the tool to get things rolling with Playing the Field. By asking the questions for you in a game format, she makes it easy to ask the right questions without making it uncomfortable for you or your prospective mate.

You are going to have sweet conversations with the help of Amanda Brown and Playing the Field Card Game.
