Atlanta's Top Dating Designer knows... Atlanta is #1 for Singles!

Atlanta, GA – Sep 9, 2008 – For those who know, love and live in “Hotlanta” it comes as no surprise that it ranks as the #1 city for Singles.

Atlanta's top Date Designer, Amanda Brown, has known this for some time. In her travels and interviews across the US she advises those searching for love on the best date ideas and ways of connecting to improve their chances for a successful relationship.

With 74 million singles in the US, the biggest problem made on first dates by men and women is the inability to communicate. Being based in Atlanta (#1 town for singles!) gives her the ability to research, gather information and discover more about the concerns and fears of those who are 'playing the field'.

As a Dating and Relationship expert who is on the front lines of single life, her experiences and daily dealings provide a grounding platform from which to help others. The information she has gathered proves that the top concern for men and women is the ability to communicate openly and effectively during the initial get-to-know-you phase of dating.

“It is important to cover your bases so that the ebbs and flows of your love life do not wreak havoc on your life. Leave the madness of the paparazzi love life to Britney Spears and Lindsey Lohan; there is enough craziness in this world! Your love life should be the grounding force that gives you stability and peace”, says Amanda.

As one of the young Atlantans to watch on the social scene, she knows that the coolness factor, the cost of living and the extensive variety of first dates are paramount here in the #1 city for Singles. “The Olympics put us on the map a decade ago. Now our sophisticated singles are putting us on the map again! I'm always being told that the Southern women have the warmest smiles and sweetest personalities. Of course the men are going to beat a path to Atlanta's door!”

Her background and expertise in helping Singles open the lines of communication to better discover their compatibilities and differences makes the possibilities for their chance at love much higher!
